

Picsquare Announces New Service for Flickr Users

Direct photo prints and photo products of Flickr photos with Picsquare

Picsquare.com, India's leading online photo print and personalized photo gift printing website has seamlessly integrated itself with Flickr.com in an attempt to take its services a step forward and provide Flickr users the best of printing technology and service. This integration would help all Flickr users to order photo prints and a range of personalized photo products and get them shipped anywhere in India, without having to upload their pictures again.

The service requires users to log into Picsquare through which Flickr accounts are a click away. Accessing the Flickr accounts proceeds through Flickr's user authentication and the security measures employed ensure that login details with Flickr remain confidential.

"Our products and services are aimed at imparting the users freedom to exercise their creativity and these products and services were launched in line with it. We are dedicated to provide quality services and products to our users and that remains our driving objective" explains Manish Agarwal, IIT-Bombay alumnus and co-founder of Picsquare.

About Picsquare

Formed 18 months ago by Manish Agarwal and Kartik Jain, both IIT-Bombay alumnus Picsquare aims at reducing the distances between people by enabling them to share photos, print photos and personalized photo products like t shirts, mugs, greeting cards and calendars.

Picsquare is the first and leading company in online photo printing segment in India and has over half a million photographs under its management. It also is the winner of Best Designed website in PC World Web Award 2007 under Online Photo Printing category, besides being the first company to get selected for EAP (Entrepreneurship Accelerated Program) by TiE Bangalore chapter.

Company Name: Picsquare (www.picsquare.com)

Contact Information:

Manish Agrawal

(Managing Director)

Phone: 080-4167-4711, 080-4167-4142, 0-99019-60007